Why 'The Lending Pad?'

People decide to become brokers as they want to have the flexibility of running their own business and not have to keep up with all the corporate expectations. It can be a big decision to set up your own business and the costs associated, some which are never foreseen, can be huge and scary, notwithstanding the time involved in doing so.

Both the leaders of 'The Lending Pad' have been senior managers in the Financial Services Industry. Ryan left his Regional Manager role to set up 'The Lending Pad' and Tara's last corporate role was as National Manager for a leading Insurance company. They have extensive experience and knowledge and have aimed to establish a business for people to join that want support so they can focus on seeing clients and generating income.

When you join 'The Lending Pad', you are instantly part of a team that generates millions of lending for the banks per month, which means that you will be taken seriously straight away as you are part of a leading business that the Banks want to have a positive relationship with.
